World Bank issues first Shogun Green Bond

"We are very proud to introduce green bonds to the 'shogun' market, and honored to have worked in collaboration with Japan Post Insurance to design the product. This World Bank Shogun Green Bond is an opportunity for Japan Post Insurance to support efforts that tackle the origin and effects of climate change through their investments with a product that meets their risk and return objectives. It is a great example of how the private sector and issuers like the World Bank can work together creatively to optimize both financial and social objectives and find solutions to global development challenges," said Arunma Oteh, Vice President and Treasurer, World Bank.
